The Artistry

Who is the man that consistently sells out all of the sophisticated & chic venues throughout North America like City Winery and legendary venues all around Europe like The Jazz Café in London for several consecutive nights? Dwele (pronounced dwell-lā) hails from the legendary music mecca of Detroit, lives a life in song. From stirring melodies composed on piano keys, he writes poignant music, performs with natural grace and captivates with his clear, silky tone. He is a songwriter, producer, multi instrument musician and vocalist carrying on a Motown-inspired tradition instilled in another era. Yet Dwele has cultivated his own spirited road with five critically acclaimed albums "Subject", "Some Kinda", "Sketches Of A Man", "W.ants W.orld W.omen" and "Greater Than One" behind him. His Motor City story in sounds and upbringing resonates with genuine soul and he's in full stride of scribing his own musical legacy.

Dwele was brought up in a highly musical family that was tragically pared down to his mother and younger brother, once his father was gunned down outside their home. Dwele was only 10. "The loss of my Father really inspired my creative side," Dwele recalls. "By getting into music, it provided me with a way to cope with his death." Dwele's music impresses with maturity beyond his years. He captures the rawness of inner city blues with hip-hop nuances that speak to his generation and beyond. His ear was shaped by Donny Hathaway, Marvin Gaye and Miles Davis, which his family played regularly in their home. What is most compelling about Dwele's work is it's timeless nature and the fact that he remains loyal to his foundation.

As a multiple Grammy Award Nominee and a shared win with legendary rap icon Kanye West, he has blazed a trail for this generation's newfound Soul/ R&B era. Although being the humble young man that he is, Dwele says "...No matter how many Grammy Nominations that I receive, I've always repped Detroit to the best of my abilities. That feeling is like exhaling, to be home while riding in the car upon my return. I see the sights and I'm back," he muses. "When I sit down at the keyboard, as soon as I get home, the material just flows out." Dwele has toured around the globe with sell-out crowds in his wake and still seems to mystify his audience, which makes them eagerly anticipate what his next move will be. Deemed by media queen Wendy Williams as a "Big R&B, Best Kept Secret", there's no doubt he has surpassed the benchmark of just getting a "Hit Record" but more so a "Hit Career."

With all of that said... It's no wonder why he was the first one chosen by McDonald's as their National Brand Ambassador for the "face and voice" of their launch of McCafe in North America. With a multitude of television appearances on Jay Leno, Jimmy Kimmel, MTV Base in Europe and the BBC Studios Live, Dwele shows no signs of slowing. Especially since "...He's The People's Choice" says Ronald "Ron E." Estill, head of REvision/ Rt Music Group, who has guided his career since inception, "it's been proven by the rave reviews for ALL of his albums." So, it's hard to even imagine when he says that "His Best is Yet to Come..."

It must be a challenge to try and out-do yourself, when you are indeed the one who sets the bar of expectations in your musical genre. So for now we all must just anxiously await for his next arrival to our town while his latest, delicious musical servings... "Wanna Dance" feat the Legendary Phife Dawg (ATCQ) & Mike City, his latest smash-single "Winter White Nights" and Brand New Collaboration with Common "HER Love" are streaming & airing on a daily basis!!!!

The urge to merge: instinctual as breathing and inevitable as growing up, there comes a time when "Be Without You" sounds better than "Single Life" and many start looking outward for legacy-building, contentment and companionship (spiritually and otherwise). Dwele's song catalog has always showcased the stages of love, but his sixth release, Greater Than One, delves deeper into murkier temptations and territories, using rich melodies, heightened harmonies and lucid lyrics to encapsulate a desire to commit without sacrificing the cool factor in the process.

If long-time fans or Dwele-come-lately listeners had high expectations due to his spectacular 2010 project, W.ants W.orld W.omen, the multi-instrumentalist, producer and songwriter doesn't disappoint: there's less bombast and boom-bap than on W.ants, since a distinctively 80s aura dominates this set, but its range is just as emotive and exciting. Never one to phone in, the prolific Dwele writes or co-writes ten of the thirteen tracks while working the drum kit, keys and horns. Monica Blaire, Raheem DeVaughn, J Tait, L' Renee and one-man hit machine Mike City contribute just enough of their talents to embellish Greater... without overtaking its direction.

5.0 out of 5 stars" GREATER THAN ONE "

By David White on August 14, 2014 (cont.)

As the opening interlude demonstrates, the 30+ performer is coming to terms with relinquishing the player card, but is not quite ready for rings, kids and SUVs just yet, a brutal truth that he paid dearly for in the bittersweet, horn-laden jazzy soul hybrid Going Leaving: She wanted more but I wasn't ready, me keepin' it real made her heart heavy. I can admit it, scared me when she said 'where is this go-ING, I said 'I'm not rea-DY, I now she's leav-ING. she wants chil-DREN, OOOH. One of the Mike City joints, the single What Profit, offers up syncopated rhythms and guitar-anchored grit on a cautionary tale about deserting your baby for the bling after getting large: Deep inside your mind down to the depths of your soul/you see love lasts long, after all the money comes and goes. What profit a man to gain the whole world, but lose his girl. If I were your man, I'd do all I can, to keep you Girl. Just as a relationship can arc outward as deeper emotions take root, the songs on Greater ripple and resonate as Dwele wades into deeper levels of honesty and oneness. Takes 2 Tango is a sinuous and salty exploration of a love that has potential to steal the show when they get their vertical rhythm right, and Raheem DeVaughn helps to double-down on the give-her-good-love or else message during the mellow, but mesmerizing What You Gotta Do. Another intriguing track is Obey, with Dwele's tenor solemnly promising 'happily-ever-after' as synthesized notes swell and surge beneath a fragile reunion. This Love is a 180-degree turn-around and a likely culmination at the jewelry store, jubilant and flush with affectionate awe for his newly-christened missus.

Dwele may be contemplating future monogamy, but the present still leaves room for partying, heard on the glib Must Be while trading verses with Black Milk, LiRenee and J. Tait about the chaos that occurs when we ain't sober and as he's wading through a Love Triangle, a folly that clicked into place after two friends with eyes for Dwele decide to...well, you can guess. Patrick Ronald (which must've been conceived after a Prince/The Time music marathon) is a club cut paying homage to the stomach-scraping beverage known as Patron that even allows Dwele to drop a few bars: That girl, she lookin' good/ she came up on me talkin' about 'whassup' I said 'my wood,/ sorry, that's Patrick talkin.' Frankly My Dear (I'm Bennett I Ain't Innit) closes with repentance when as he plays tug-of-war with his lust and his logic after discovering that last night's companion has a man: But you sure is fine, and right now you're mine/I should just be hesitant and use my common sense. On my shoulders there's a good head, but I keep using my (bleeped out) instead.

In the decade since his self-distributed debut Rize, Dwele could've stagnated within the neo-soul niche or chased bigger name recognition by dropping simpler and sex-starved R&B, but the Detroit native continues to evolve, fearlessly melding expansive lyrical insights with his masterful sense of musicality, making this CD an essential purchase and one of the Greater contemporary soul releases of 2012.

5.0 out of 5 stars" WANTS WORLD WOMEN "

ByDavid Whiteon August 18, 2014

Format: Audio CD
Balancing materialism, societal consciousness and the one-on-one love movement: it's a struggle for anyone in this world, but multi-instrumentalist, songwriter and soul crooner Dwele skillfully illustrates each aspect in his fourth and most ambitious release yet, Wants World Women.

The cover probably says it all: three very divergent photos of Dwele spliced together as one, representing an informal trinity of id, ego and superego as an attempt to illustrate each aspect. Containing thirteen songs (the rest are brief introductions delineating one section from the other), a handful of well-placed guest appearances and some of the best performances in his catalog, WWW is confident in both range and delivery, starting with the gritty boom-bap flavor of the opening track, "I Wish": "I wish I had a dollar for every dollar you think I have/I wish I had a Gucci suit inside that Gucci bag." The desires aren't just for wealth and status though: "Grown" depicts what actions he's into with a young lady over a plucky club beat, and the sensual "Dim The Lights," which pairs him with R&B peer Raheem DeVaughn, could certainly school the younger 'ebang the headboard' crowd on being sexual without using vulgarity in the process: "You want my lips, on yours/ I want your hips, on me. We want this feeling to last/ always, through eternity." "Dodging Your Phone," featuring David Banner, also showcases a couple of rap bars from the soul provider. The World section is its shortest, but that doesn't necessarily negate its earnestness or its impact: Dwele praises his brethren through thick and thin in "My People," sings of hope and optimism with Monica Blaire and Lloyd Dwayne in the soothing "Detroit Sunshine," and depicts a world struggling with cold reality after eight years of drunken political madness and stupor in the deceptively glib-sounding "Hangover": "Young lady, who's to blame? We all played our part/ we all should've voted from the start." The fact that the final section is the longest probably signals Dwele's comfort level with, well, Women. The percolating "Love You Right" portrays a man tearing up his playa membership card after an attempt to "hit and be on my way" turns into true love, and what could be a follow-up, the "What's Not To Love," is an adoring tribute to what draws him to his lady and why he's so privileged to have her around: "And you're not afraid to admit when you're wrong/Better yet, what about our lovemaking marathons? Girl it's making me want to head straight to Tiffany's/and slide something shiny on your finger." DJ Quik (yes, THAT one) isn't the first rapper you'd envision to get with Dwele to drop a love song, but his delivery remains as sure as ever and the two actually make a competent, if quirky, duo. It's a well-known fact that you can't have it all, but Dwele's WWW artfully combines elements of soul and hip-hop in his quest to address the personal and political through his music. For those who thought that 2008's Sketches of a Man meandered too often, Dwele's focused finesse this time around cements his status as one of his generation's most worthy soul men and storytellers.

5.0 out of 5 starsNeo Soul Food!!!

ByAmazon Customer on September 7, 2009

Format: Audio CD I have become a big fan of Dwele. I have heard all his work and I know his vibe to be exquisite however, I had no idea that he had a recent album until I came across one at my friend's house. I ran to the first record store and picked it up as soon as I could. Once again, this new school crooner has hit the mark. His album is full of soul, old school and new. I loved 'I'm Cheatin', but that is not the song I loved most on the album. His song 'Free As A Bird', does justice while 'Love Ultra' and 'If You Want To' must have an honorable mention. My favorite is a mix between 'Vain' and 'Travelin' Girl'. The album is so good, you want 5 Dolla Mic and 70's to be songs as well. Oh that good music could once again be put in the hands of the public again. This album should be off the charts! I look forward to hearing more of his work in the future and hope that Dwele hangs in there for many albums to come!
